

PAN-EUROPEAN ELECTION TECHNO

Swedish comedian/musician Micke Lindgren let´s his character DJ Trexx rock the vote for the upcoming European Parliament elections with new song *A Union of Peace, Love and Bass

DJ Trexx (Micke Lindgren) rose to Swedish fame during the national Eurovision finals, where he and his merry band of dancers performed a satirical showstopper called “Tingaliin - russian bass lovers remix”. The number joked around with various russian national symbols and made the russian embassy in Stockholm lash out in anger: “Done by lunatics, who should be placed in an asylum” said russian cultural attaché Anatoly Kargapolov at the embassy. The original Tingeling-performance from Globen (the Swedish national stage in Stockholm) can be seen at:

Now, DJ Trexx is back with a message to Europe: Democracy is cool. The mohawk-clad russian-german DJ and rapper has made a hard pumping eurotechno-anthem to put some color on the runup to the EP elections. The music-video contains sexy parliamentarian-dancers, European Union-hotpants and an electric violin. DJ Trexx is rapping:

“When I was a little boy, had no techno had no toy, did not know democracy, father was in red army. My mother played the violin, and from the house in east berlin, she let me sneak out when night fall, to hear the techno through the wall...”

The project is an initiative of Micke Lindgren (from swedish comedy group Grotesco), who also embodies DJ Trexx and has written the song with Andreas Grill:

“DJ Trexx grew up in East Berlin during the eighties, listening to pirate-tapes with electronic music from the other side of the wall. To him, techno and Democracy goes hand in hand.”

The project is quite unique in that it is a european citizens attempt to reach out to all young people of the union with the message that voting on the 7th of june is important. According to alarming reports, a big portion of european youth are not even aware that the election is taking place or when.

The song and the video are released online for free download and use by anyone and everyone, including TV, radio and campaigns (high res TV-version is available no cost).
